Teaching sexuality and relationships

The Victorian Essential Learning Standards include sexuality education as a compulsory component of the curriculum from Prep to Year 10.

Family Planning Victoria can help you develop or teach your sexuality education program.

1. Building sexual health literacy programs

FPV can work with your school community to help you develop a sustainable, whole-school sexual health program that meets VELs and builds sexual health literacy in your students. We help you:

- design your program
- ensure your school policies reflect the values in your program
- understand and include your parent community
- build confidence and skills in your staff.

2. Professional development program

Conducted by experienced classroom teachers, our practical workshops will give you confidence, ideas, strategies and activities to use with your students. You'll learn what resources are available and how to use them to help your students develop sexual health literacy and meet VELs.

Our courses are approved by the Victorian Institute of Teaching and listed on PDI. As well as our in-house program, we can also conduct professional development sessions in your school.

3. Classroom sessions

Each year, our expert educators are available to conduct a limited number of fee-for-service sexual health education sessions in schools. These sessions are designed to kick start your program and contribute to your ongoing work. They aim to prepare participating teachers to teach sexual health by:

- enhancing their sexual health knowledge base
- helping them become comfortable with lesson content and language
- modelling effective strategies for teaching sexual health.

2010 sessions include:

Primary

Grade 3 / 4 Program – human development across the lifespan

Grade 5 / 6 Program – social, physical and emotional changes of puberty

Secondary

Safer Sex, Contraception and STIs

Healthy Relationships

Sexual Decision Making

4. Parent / carer information nights

Recent research shows most parents want their children to have sexuality education at school. A great way to engage and reassure your parent/carer group is through an information night. We can help you tailor a session that's right for your group.

For more information on any of these services, contact our registrar.
